

finance arena and took on an active role in partnering with many housing finance organizations, housing policymakers, and regulators in discussions regarding the stabilization, and future, of the housing market.

Issuers

As part of its strategy to build a diverse and viable issuer base, Ginnie Mae actively seeks to engage new issuers. Diversification not only mitigates risk, but helps to further extend the benefits of the full faith and credit guaranty across communities. As such, Ginnie Mae has been reaching out to community lenders to directly participate in the Ginnie Mae program. During FY 2011, Ginnie Mae launched a range of outreach efforts to highlight the benefits of government-insured or government-guaranteed mortgage loans and doing business with Ginnie Mae. These efforts have helped Ginnie Mae to understand and respond to the questions and needs of mortgage lenders. It also reached out to previous issuers who have not participated in Ginnie Mae's MBS programs recently to work with them to reactivate their status. This outreach proved largely successful during FY 2011, which saw 85 new issuer applications and 39 approvals.

Training and education remain key components for new and existing issuers, and are particularly valuable to those seeking to understand expectations and methods for maximizing their opportunities in the Ginnie Mae program. Roundtable sessions with issuers allow for exchanges of information and fostering effective implementation of program changes. Additionally, a standardized, multi-tiered training program is under development to enable issuers to conduct business more effectively with Ginnie Mae. These will be complemented by quarterly business partner outreach calls, which provide a forum for discussing a host of program issues.

In addition, Ginnie Mae conducts biannual meetings to discuss market issues and program changes. The Office of MBS hosts these forums at major industry conferences, with participation from other divisions including Capital Markets. Such meetings provide for a rich exchange of thoughts and suggestions, which has enabled Ginnie Mae Account Executives to become more effective conduits of information and advocates for program enhancements. Additionally, newly implemented standards for interacting with issuers enable Ginnie Mae to better capture their business needs and challenges. Furthermore, a growth in the number of Account Executives has expanded Ginnie Mae's capacity for customer outreach and its ability to compile enhanced issuer profiles, provide day-to-day assistance, and coordinate evaluations for commitment authority requests. All of this enables Ginnie Mae to focus its attention on areas of foremost concern to its issuers and actively work toward achieving resolutions. The expanded capacity for outreach also has helped maintain a constant assessment of the risks and issues facing an issuer.

Investors

Ginnie Mae retains a broad domestic and international investor base while continually looking for ways to identify, attract, and partner with diverse participants, particularly as global investors have been winding down positions in
